son, in Selma, Wednesday, spent last night in this city with a friend, having arrived at 8 o'clock. He drove all the way from Selma in a buggy. It was on the advice of his lawyers here that he returned to Selma this morning and gave himself up.

While here he gave his version of the shooting. He says Shelley and his companion, Lee, run him out of his place of business, and he went to his room near by and got his rifle, when he returned. Shelley said, "Get out of here; I thought we'd run you off once."

"Keep back," replied Burch, "or I'll shoot you."

Shelley continued to advance with a hammer in his hand.

"If you come nearer I'll shoot," he repeated three times to Shelley, who continued to approach fearlessly, not heeding the warning. When he got within six feet Burch fired, the ball striking Shelley near the right nipple. He then turned to shoot Lee, who ran behind some shutters, erying, "Don't shoot—don't shoot!"

Burch claims he had been warned that the men were dangerous and desperate, but claims that he did not know either.

Ellington's sentence was suspended in view of the mitigating circumstances, that is, being the tool of the others, and upon the plea of guilty being made, one-third of the costs was imposed, amounting to $102.

Robinson is said to have been an old offender. He was arrested at Arcola, N. C., over a year ago and convicted, but the sentence was suspended during his good behavior, but it seems he could not resist the temptation to violate the law.

EDITORS IN SHACKLES

Sweeping the Streets of a Town in Guate-CITY OF MEXICO, June 12.-A telegram from Guatemala states that the president has caused the imprisonment of Nicholas Cifuentez, Manuel Alfaro and Ventura Pasz, who were editors of El Popular, of Guezaltenango, one of the principal towns in the upper districts of Guatemala. By his orders they were chained and thrown into prison, and are made to sweep the streets with ball and chain locked to their feet, carry heavy stones and do other degrading work. It appears that they published an article in their paper under the heading of "Thieves Authorized and Un-authorized," which attacked the quasi government of Barillas. At once their office was eized, and the editors were cast into prison. The incident has caused marked indignation and the feeling against Barillas has increased intensely. The revolutionary talk is stronger than ever over this outrage.

ONE DOLLAR MISSING.

The Count of the Cash in the Vaults of Washington, June 12.—The count of the cash in the vaults of the treasury, consequent on the recent change in the office of treasurer, has so far resulted in the discovery of a discrepancy of $1. This is missing from a bag of silver in a vault containing nearly $70,000,000 The bag broke open by its own weight and detered among other bags in the vault. It contained $1,000 in silver dollars, all but one of which were found, and that one will probably turn up before the examination of the vault is concluded. Otherwise, ex-Treasurer Huston wili have to make it good.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Futures opened two to three points better, but quickly lost the advance, followed by a slight recovery, closing steady at seven to nine points' decline from yesterday's closing prices. It is not improbable that there has been funny business in the way of manipulating the New York and Liverpool markets since the bureau report came out. At any rate, higher prices from Liverpool were followed by a concert of selling by the leading bulls, who took advantage of the confidence thus inspired to unload with a freedom that has seldom been equaled. Favorable weather reports from the south may have had something to do with it. Perhaps a general liquidation has set in, and in that case the question arises: "Who is going to hold the bag?" Spot cotton was dull.

Shot Through the Heart. FORT MONROE, Va., June 12.—Edward A. Har negan, a young man from Washingten, was shot and killed this evening by Thornton C. Haynes, son of Colonel Peter C. Haynes, of the engineer son of Colonel Peter C. Haynes, of the engineer corps of the army. The two young men came here from Washington a few days ago and were rooming together. They went out rowing this evening and got into a quarrel, when Haynes shot Hannegan through the heart. The body has been carried to the hospital to await the action of the coroner. Haynes went to Colonel Frank, post commander, and surrendered himself. He claims the shooting was done in self-defense.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 12 .- While coming down the mountain from Floydsville to Bellwood, on the Pennsylvania and Northwestern railroad, last night, a heavy coal train got be yond control, and dashing down grade at tearful rate of speed, was piled up and smashed into kindling wood at a curve on the side of a deep ravine about three miles north of Bell-

The engine and twenty-five cars, loaded with ooal, lay piled up in a mass of broken wood and twisted iron at the bottom of the ravine, and among the debris were the bodies of the conductor, engineer and one brakeman, with almost all semblance to humanity crushed out of them. The other train hands escaped with their lives, but all were more or less injured. The track is torn up and blockaded for a long distance, and passengers are being transferred by way of Altoona and Cresson. The accident is supposed to have been caused by wet rails and the air brakes refusing to work properly. It has been impossible to learn the names of all the killed and injured men.

NASHVILLE, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—Mr. C. W. Macune, editor of The National Economist, left here tonight for Henderson, Kr., where he will speak tomorrow.

He was asked today how long the alliance would seek relief at the hands of the old parties, and replied: "That question is one that is to be settled at a meeting to be held in February. The Ocala convention authorized the calling of a meeting of representatives of all organizations of pro ducers willing to co-operate to secure the necessary reforms, with full power to decide what concession is necessary for each to make to reach an agreement upon a set of demands and the methods necessary to enforce them." He said the farmers were terribly in earnest. They loved their party, however, and nothing was to be feared from them if their demand were met with proper concessions.

Only eight guests were in their rooms at the time. Luckily there were no women or children among them. They saved themselves by jumping from the third-story window to the sidewalk, where they were caught by the crowd, sustaining slight injuries. The building was consumed in an hour's time. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $19,000. Henry Dick, the champion ladder climber of the southwest, of the fire department, had an arm broken by a falling ladder.

CAME DASHING DOWN. THE PRINCE IN DISGRACE

HE IS ROUNDLY DENOUNCED ON ALL

ON ACCOUNT OF THE PART HE HAS YLAYED. sity-Hot Times Expected When the Affair Gets Into Politics.

London, June 12.—It is understood that the prince of Wales is keenly stung at the adverse press criticisms which have been showered upon him from all quarters. Especially is this the case in regard to newspaper comments, which practically accuse him of revealing the secret of the Tranby Croft scandal, and re-ferring to the fact that he, the prince of Wales, was not asked if he had spoken of the affair to anybody, after Sir William Gordon Cumming signed the incriminating document, while) this question was put to all other wit-nesses for the defendants.

The prince of Wales emphatically denies that he divalged the secret to anybody. The war office authorities are holding frequent conferences, and are discussing the action to take in consequence of the verdict given against Sir William Gordon Cumming. The duke of Cambridge, field marshal, and commander-inchief, yesterday summoned General Owen Williams and Colonel H. H. D. Stacey, in command of the Scotch Fusilier Guards, Sir William Gordon Cumming's regiment, to the Horse Guards, where these two officers had a one interview with the duke.

William Gordon has announced that he is willing to meet the charge of playing an illegal game.

In the house of commons Monday next Mr. William Summers, liberal, member for Hud-dersfield, and Mr. Henry Peyton Cobb, radical non-conformist, member for Rugby district of Warwickshire, will question the right of Hon. Edward Stanhope, secretary of state for war, as to what action he intends to take in regard to the three officers, Field Marshal Prince of Wales, General Owen Williams and Lieutenant Berkeley Levett, of the Scotch Fusiller Guards who signed the document which practically allowed Sir William Gordon Cumming to remain an officer of the British army, although he was believed to have cheated at cards, and as to what action he intends to take in regard to the same officers for having broken army regulations, requiring that the cases, one of which occurred at Tranby Croft in Septemper iast, should be brought to the notice of the nmanding officers.

DROPPED FROM THE LIST. The official Gazette this morning annot under date of June 10th, that the name of Sir William Gordon Cumming has been removed from the list of officers in the army, as her majesty has no further occasion for his

The Feeling Against the Prince.

LONDON, June 12.—[Copyright, 1891, by the New York Associated Press.]—The storm rising around the prince of Wales is fast obtaining intensity, endangering his chances of succession to the throne, if not the existence of the English monarchy. No class appears to be stirred so deeply as the great middle class, the real strength of the country and hitherto the real strength of the country and hithert the solid and stolid prop of the menar. Wherever its voice becomes audible, its ear mes audible, its earne lenunciations of the prince of Wales are accompanied by regrets at his nearness to the throne. Representative gatherings of religious bodies—Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, Unitarian and Presbyterian—have already corded their condemnation.

PROTESTS FROM SOCIETIES. Boards of guardians are going out of their occustomed paths to discuss motions branding the gambling propensities of the prince of Wales as a disgrace to the country. Several liberal societies have adopted protests against his continuance in the army. The agitation has every character of permanence. It has not yet touched more than the fringe of the political parties, but ere long the glowing fiercenes of politics, causing party action within and

WHAT THE RADICALS SAY.

A group of radicals at a meeting tonight, after Cumming's dismissal from the army was gazetted, concurred in the opinion that the leaders had mistaken the feeling of the nation, that even on party grounds it was impossible to neglect the duty to take the sense of parlianent on the position of the prince and other

SEVERAL CONFERENCES HELD. Conferences have been held at the war offices, attended by Stanhope, duke of Cambridge, duke of Connaught, General Redvers, Fullers and Colonel Strahey, and it is reported that they decided that the prince of Wales, General Williams and Levetthad committed no offense against military law, but only a technical brack of the regulations. Standard only a technical breach of the regulations. Stan-hope, therefore, basing Monday's response to the questions on the decision of the conference will probably declare that the commander-in-chief will deal with the case pr vately without regard to the regulations.

In reference to the earl of Coventry, it is reported in court circles that he has intimated to Lord Salisbury his readiness to resign the office of master of the buckbounds, but that the acceptance of his resignation is delayed till the government sees how Lord Coventry's retirement is likely to affect the position of the prince of Wales.

Club sentiment naturally supports the prince. Although the chairman of the Marlborough Club committee writes repudiating high play in vogue at the club and denying that games of hazard are allowed, it is publicly known that the club has just elected Wilson and other baccarat friends of the prince of Wales. Nor has the scandal leasened the prince's popularity in the turf set. Rumers of his bad reception at Ascot are a perversion of the facts. The turf crowds seemed bent to condole him and be had the heartiest greeting. He was especially cheered today when his horse won the high-weight plate. THE CLUBS WITH THE PRINCE.

The News says:

Cumming's dismissal is a logical consequence of the verdict and ought to satisfy all but those who still believe him innocent. He will best consult his own interest and what is left of his dignity, by anticipating all other humiliations of the same sort likely to befall him.

The article proceeds to excuse the prince of Wales for failing to resort to a drastic exposure of his friend, and concludes thus:

He sought the middle course, and we must all try to temper justice with mercy in blaming him, though he happened to lose his way.

The Church Times advises the prince of Wales to sign a denunciation of card playing in the presence of Lord Salisbury and the archbishop of Canterbury. This, it says, would have a tremendous moral effect over society, and would not harm the prince of Wales.

PRICES LOWER, WILL FURTHER DECLINE

The Exports of Gold Put a Terrible Str Upon Business, but Trade Is Gen-erally Well Maintained.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The failures throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., number for the United States, 219; Canada, 25; total, 344, against 212 for the corresponding week of last water.

States, 219; Canada, 25; total, 344, against 212 for the corresponding week of last year.

There is nothing rose-colored in our report as respects the chances of speculators and gamblers. Those who consider the gampling end of the business, and no other, may well be disheartened. Prices are lower, with the prospects of a further decline. The exposures and losses of those who have emptied their own funds and the funds of others into Wallstreet are not rose-colored.

THE LEGITIMATE BUSINESS.

But the legitimate business of the country, though not as large as it was a year age, when the crops had not failed and trade was far greater than ever before at this season, is, nevertheless, large, well maintained and generally healthy. Yery rarely has such a strain been put upon pro-crops had not failed and trade was far greater than ever before at this season, is, nevertheless, large, well maintained and generally healthy. Very rarely has such a strain been put upon productive industry and legitimate business as by the enormous exports of gold in May. It is a most significant fact that after this severe test, the state of trade is better for the season and more hopeful than it was in April, when the great movement of gold had not begun. Within thirty days the largest crop of wheat ever grown, it is probable, will be moving to market.

At Philadelphia manufactured iron is strengthened by orders from Chicago. Hides are quiet with cheering prospects, though the shoe trade is but fairly satisfactory; the paper trade is fair and hopeful; tobacco and drugs unohanged; paints dull and the liquor trade good. In groceries there is a dismal lack of speculation, but to moves more largely than last year.

Pittsburg reports no change in iron, except that Ressemer steel is stronger. At Cleveland dry goods, groceries and hardware are moving fairly, and manufactured iron is in fair demand, but coal and ore are functive. Capable business men in all parts of the country look upon the moderate shrinkage in the present trade as a natural result of last year's short crops, and count with great confidence upon a large business with full yield promised this year. The iron industry, for months exceeding others in the decreasing stocks unsold, which is evidence that a heavy demand hereafter is expected. In bar, plate and structural iron the demand is already larger. Wool sales are also larger here, at Roston and Philadelphia, with moderate concessions by holders, and manufacturers show greater confidence by their buying. In all parts of the country the money market shows surprising strength, notwithstanding the loss of gold to Europe, and while closeness is reported at Detroit, St. Louis, Nashville and Savannah, the reports from nearly all the dities show that nobody is suffering except the speculators.

THE CIGARETTE INVENTION.

A Big Suit Over a Very Small Subject-A

S23,000 Suit.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 12.—[Special.]—
The federal court is now in session in Charlotte. Judges Bond and Dick are presiding. They are engaged upon a case of considerable magnitude. It is that of the Bonsack Machine Company vs. W. Duks, Sons & Co. While the direct sum sued for is only about $23,000, the whois amount involved in the contract between the parties is about $23,000. It appears that some time ago a young man named Bonsack, then sixteen years old, invented a machine for the manufacture of cigarettes, and, the Bonsack Machine Company being organized, rented out the machine to W. Duke, Sons & Co., at a royalty stated to be 20 cents per 1,000 cigarettes. They claim that after they got the machines, the Bonsack company leased them to other manufactories at a lower rate, and they declined to use them. The Bonsack company brings suit for the recovery of an alleged unpaid balance of $23,000 on the royalty, which claim the Dukes deny. There is quite an array of counsel. The Bonsack company is represented by W. W. Gordon, of Richmond; A. H. Burroughs, of Lynchburg, and Colonel H. C. Jones, of Charlotte. Mr. C. C. Beamon, of New York, law partner of Senator Evarts; W. W. Fuller, of Durham, and Barwell & Walker, of Charlotte representing the Dukes. The case has excited Durham, and Barwell & Walker, of Charlotte, representing the Dukes. The case has excited a great deal of interest. The two Dukes were the only witnesses examined this morning. The claim and counter claim plainly stated is this: The Bonsack company claims that the Dukes owe it about $23,000 for royalty. The Dukes claim on account of the Bonsack underselling the royalties they are due about $250,000 from the Bonsack company.

TIRED OF LIVING.

An Alabama Legislator Goes Out by the Poison Route.

Montgomery, Ala., June 12.—[Special.]—Hon. J. N. Gilchrist, a prominent young member of the legislature from Montgomery county, committed suicide as the Merchants' hotel here this morning. He was found in his room about 8 o'clock, unconscious, by a bell boy. Physicians were summoned, but he never rallied. He left a note addressed to his father, Colonel J. G. Gilchrist, bidding him goodby, asking his forgiveness for his act, and giving as a reason for his determination to take his own life that he preferred death to a dissipated life. He had been drinking hard recently, and had become desperate. The father of the deceased is one of the wealthiest and most prosperous planters in the south, and the son was liberally educated and indulged in every want and surrounded with every luxury heart could wish, being the only living child of a once large and happy household. His death every want and surrounded with every lawer, heartcould wish, being the only living child of once large and happy household. His deat was a shock to the community and a surprise notwithstanding his repeated threats during the day to take his own life. He took eigh

Went Against Cheek.

Ralkion, N. C., June 12.—[Special.]—In the United States circuit court today, the interesting $10,000 damage suit of Cheek against Mial, growing out of the arrest of Cheek on the charge of enticing away negroes under contract, resulted adversely to Cheek. Judge Seymong instructed the jury that there was probable cause for Cheek's arrest, and that he was not entitled to recover damages. Cheek prayed a writ of error to the appellate court.

ATHENS' THRIFT.

PRE-GREAT COMMERCIAL FUTURE

Her Industries and Com-

ATHENS, Ga., June 12 .- [Special correspondence Constitution.]—There|is nothing parable to the energy of the people of this city except their superb confidence. All les and professions seem to be on their mettle, and nothing like adverse circumstance an retard Athens's growth. It is work her all the time, and the newcomer readily gets in with the tide of new ideas and material advancement. Everything here is on a solid basis. The dwellings are among the most attractive in the land; the storehouses and pub-lic buildings are constructed with an eye to permanence; the manufacturing establishnts are varied and comprehensive; public indicate a future of decided hope, an everything is being done in a manner that shows to the world that Athens is in the race of progress to stay. There is no experiment-ing. The future of the town is assured, and people know it. here are industries in Athens, covering a wide field of manufacture, that range in in vidual capitalization from $5,000 to $250,000; business houses of imposing structure; public buildings of superb design; a newly built Young Men's Christian Association building. that was erected at a cost of $20,000; a mag nificent $20,000 opera house, which is well appointed and has a seating capacity of 1,500; ides some of the handson best appointed school buildings and churcher that are to be found in the progressive south.

Besides the superior natural drainage that carries offiall superfluous water from the surface of the ground, and the freedom of the city from fogs, low and marshy grounds, stagnan pools and all generators of malaria, the local government is busy putting in a fine system of sewerage that will add to their city's distinct iveness for purity and cleanliness. Bonds amounting to $75,000 have also been voted for Athens's central railroad position is one of her strongest features. The Richmond and Danville, the greatest system on the continent has an entrance here, connecting with the Macon and Northern, the Georgia road is the third, and that great trunk line, the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, is the fourth, while the Augusta and Chattanooga will, in the near future, be built through here, to reap some of the traffic of her diversified wealth. Thus it will appear that Athens has all the practical benefits that can possibly be derived from low freight rates and through connections. Her throbbing industries and equable climate furnish a safety valve to let off the suerfluous steam of labor at the north, which is rapidly being crowded to the wall by meeting with the reduction in wages inseparable from the pressure of over-supply. These are steadily growing and expanding, and it would seem that in this feature alone Athens had found a highway of success. The proximity of the supply of raw material, the gradients of the lines lroad leading to points of delivery, facilities for housing and properly feeding working men and their families, fares, freight rates, cli-nditions, purity of water, church and chool advantages and a score of other items, all come in to insure success or hasten defeat. In all these respects the position of Athens is one of admirable distinction. It is impossible to investigate her surroundings without being favorably impressed with her great future as a hive of industry, a favorite residential place and an objective point for new railroads. Already the industrial growth of Athens represents a combined capital of about $1,500,000, and some important manufacturing establishment is oc-casionally being added to the inspiring list.

When with this is considered her constantly growing mercantile importance, which is clearly emphasized by an aggressive reaching out for new territory on the part of her business men, the reader will have some conion of what this town will be within next few years. The character of the land surrounding Athens, which gives her marts an annual cotton trade of 100,000 bales, is such as itee solid growth in the future. It is of the highest fertility and most diversified adaptability. The beautiful hills and valleys that Iend such a picturesque charm location, covered, as they are, with a tapestry of luxuriant field and forest and sparkling water scenes, make Athens an attrative resi point-while her abundant water power and water supply make her prominent in industrial conditions. Athens already has a population of 11,000 people, and with such a start and the conditions detailed above, there is every reason for believing that her future growth is going to be quick and decided.

The newly organized paid fire department of Athens is a model of modern equipment. excellent chief, Captain George McDor man, his competent assistant, Mr. I. N. Butler, and efficient force of ten men, are perfecting a department that will be in keeping with the other distinctions that bless this city. The company has a hook and ladder truck, a hose wagon with 12,000 feet capacity, one Button er, one large and two small Babcock exfive horses and a first-class fire alarm. The have two houses. From the time that the Pioneer Hook and Ladder Company began career of brildiant championships, ars ago, Athens has led the state enthusiasm and successful contests, in this feature, and now since she has got her paid department her position is stronger than

The Athens Park and Improvement Com pany, which is operating here on a magnifi-cent scale, has a hundred hands and scrapers on their beautiful property, grading and im-proving the same for their great sale of lots being on June 23d. The grand boulevard that has been cut through the property is seventy-six feet wide and one and a half miles ng, traversed the entire length by an electric some of the prettiest resident lots I have seen, a number of them having springs, cool and freely-flowing, to add to their attractiveness. Across the property a number of avenues sixty feet wide are graded, which gives desirable prominence to every lot in the tract. There is no lot that is further removed from the electric line than 300 yards, and all culiar charm as home sites. The lots are 0x200, and will be sold on such terms that est classes can have an opportunity of 100:200, and will be sold on such terms that the poorest classes can have an opportunity of coming into possession of one or more lots at their sale. It is a splendid opportunity for judicious investment, and crowds from every part of the country will be here to put their money in on the ground floor.

The prohibitionists met yesterday and organized for the coming contest by electing Mr. E. R. Hodgson, a prominent business man, as president. The War of Roses is on, and the question of whether the sale of liquor shall be legalized and regulated, or whether it shall be sold through "blind tigers" in wanton violation of law, will be an interesting one for the nant few weeks. It is not the usual question of "wet" or "dry," but whether "blind tigers" all be supermeded by licensed traffic. At least this is the way it appears to an outsider.

WANTS TO DRAW OUT.

Why a Part of Thomasyille Is Dissatisfied with the Main Body.

Thomasyille, Ga., June 12.—(Special.)—Notice is given by the residents of Fairview, a prosperous suburb of Thomasville, that at the next session of the legislature application will be made for the passage of a local and special act for the incorporation of that portion of the city into a separate and distinct municipal government of its own. This action seems to have been the result of the council refusing to open a street asked for by real estate owners of Fairview. The street asked for crosses two tracks of the Savannah, Florida and Western rallway, and is on the site where the railroad expects to put in a network of sidetracks. The authorities of the road say that if they are forced to put in the street they will move the shops, employing a large force of hands, elsewhere. The council has seen fit to refuse to accede to the request for the opening of the street. The situation appears to be just this: The railroad company says the shops will go if the street comes, and the Fairview people seem determined to pull off from the city if they cannot have the street. A meeting will be held by them tonight to discuss the question and to select an attorney to represent them in the matter.

He proceeded to bore through a sill on the side of the cell. It took eighteen holes to complete the job, nine on each side. With the chisel he removed the block and went to work on the brick. This was doubtless quick work. Every brick removed was brought inside. Then with his blankets tied on the inside of the cell he let himself down on the outside of the cell he let himself down on the out-side, a distance of about twelve feet, and was a free man for the present. Woodville High School.

GREENSBORO, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—In mentioning the closing exercises of the schools of Greene, we omitted those of Woodvile High school, under Professor and Mrs. V. T. Sanford. These exercises will be held beginning July 12th, the sermon being preached by Rev. W. M. Harris, of Washington. On Wednesday, the 15th, there will be an address by Dr. G. H. Nunnally, of Mercer university. It is probable, also, that State School Commissioner Bradwell will be present and it is not improbable that Hon. Thomas E. Watson may be also, from both of whom something good improbable that Hon. Thomas E. Watson may be also, from both of whom something good may be expected. The pupils are just entering upon a course of preparation for their recitations and speeches and as they are entering upon it with zeal and animation it may be confidently expected that they will furnish an entertainment which will be most gratifying to their friends and interesting to the public.

Melon Shipments from Bainbridge. BAINBRIDGE, Ga., June 12.-[Special.]-The Bannender, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—The shipment of watermelons has not yet begun from this point, but in a very few days many carloads will go from here. The unusual drought of the last spring has considerably checked the growth of the vines and the development of the melons, but recently the rains have set in and the prospects of the growers are much brighter. Some fear that a pronave set in and the prospects of the growers are much brighter. Some fear that a protracted wet season may prove more disastrous at this time than the drought has been. Up to this date a few carloads have gone through here by the Alabama Midland railroad, but they were small and doubtless of inferior quality.

Barn and Stables Burned.

Decatur, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—The barn and stables of Hon. Milton A. Candler were destroyed by fire this morning. He lost, in addition to his building, one new buggy and harness, and one of his horses was slightly burned. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the carelesness of a colored boy, who either threw a match or cigarette where it caught the hay in the barn.

Robbed the Doctor. MACON, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—Last night a thief entered the house of Dr. James A. An Election Ordered.

TRION, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—Ordinary Mattox has given notice that an election will be held at the different precincts in this (Chattooga) county on the 10th of July to fill the vacancy in the office of tax collector, caused by the death of William M. Johnson, who died a few days ago. There is no lack for aspirants to fill the dead man's shoes. Mr. Johnson was a good collector, having served two years in that capacity, and was re-elected at the last election in January.

Land Was Cheap Then.

CARROLLTON, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—
The lot of land upon which Carrollton is built is 128 in the tenth district. It was purchased by the judges of the inferior court of Carroll county from Henry Curtis, November 14, 1829, for $150. The deed was made in January, 1830. The counthouse was established January 6th, 1830. It may not be generally known that the first name of Carrollton was Troupsville, and that it was changed the next year to Carrollton.

PRESTON'S HED-AKE

GIA COURT.

Mrs. Harrison Tells About Her Experien Augusta Boarding House Twiggs in Self-Defense.

Augusta, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—The sensational fight of Mr. Marion Harrison, of Charleston, against his wife for possession of his four-year-old son, under a writ of habeas corpus, after two days trial, was ended this evening.

No case has ever attracted as much atter tion in the courts of Augusta as this one. It is the general topic of conversation, and has even attracted the attention of the ladies, who became interested in the trial, and was the theme of their talk. Merchapts left their busi-

Court opened at 9 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Harrison, wife of Mr. Harrison, who brought suit for recovery of the child, and against whom she is sueing for a divorce, was the first witness on the stand today. She is an exceptionally intelligent woman, and made and made her statement very dispass but was a little dramatic at times.

She told of the suffering and misery she had orne during her married life, and Harrison had repeatedly threatened to kill her and made strong accusations against her chastity. She said she believed Mr. Harrison loved their child, but circumstances did not show that he loved her, for he had certainly cruelly treated her. Regarding the legal contract Mr. Harrison submitted to his wife since their last separation for her approval, agree ing to let her have control of the child if she would return to Charleston and allow him ccess to the boy at his pleasure, Mrs. Harrison said she thought it was a scheme of Mr. Harrison's to steal the boy from her. Mrs. Harrison testified that the boy was extremely delicate, almost constantly affected with croup, and needed the most careful attention.

WHY SHE LEFT MRS. PALMER'S. Mrs. Harrison explained her leaving Mrs. Palmer's boarding house. She denied having been ordered to leave. She said her counse Judge Twiggs, said he did not admire her sur there were more ladies.

She said she did not desire to stay there any longer, as she saw a good many things in the house not in keeping with decency. Continu-

'Mrs. Palmer told me if I intended going I had better seek a hotel, where I would be bet-ter guarded in case of emergency. I told her tleman's bedroom, and she said I had better I wished: that I had seen her come out of Mr Joseph Graham's room. I would have left," she said, "that night and stopped at the Arlington, but was advised by my counsel to wait until a better place could be found, and then I went to Mrs. Thomas."

Mrs. Harrison said: "The immediate circumstance that was disclosed to me, and caused me leaving the house, was one evening while sitting in the parlor with Mrs. Palmer and Mr. Graham. Mr. Graham said: 'Mrs. Palmer, how much elastic does it take to make your garters? I'll

NOW JUDGE TWIGGS EXFLAINS.

Judge Twiggs went to the witness stand, and said that in view of the insinuations made against him yesterday, of improper conduct between himself and Mrs. Harrison, his client, against him yesterday, of improper conduct between himself and Mrs. Harrison, his client, he desired to make a statement in denial of such innuendoes. He said Mrs.q Harrison last January wrote to him about her case, and when she came to Augusta he was out of the city; that Mrs. Harrison had been here some time, and when he returned to the city his partner, Mr. Verdery, informed him she was in the city. Mrs. Harrison, he said, had learned he had returned to the city, and wrote him a note asking him to call, and he went to see her. Judge Twiggs said that was in March, and he had not been in the city very much since then, as the court very well knew. He was absent several weeks attending court in Washington, McDuffle, Screven and Emanual counties. He said that during Mrs. Harrison's residence in Mrs. Palmer's house, he was in the city a very Palmer's house, he was in the city a very short while. He said it was true that one day he did visit her, probably three times, but it was untrue that his visits were frequent or lengthy. He said he considered Mrs. Palmer's house disreputable, and characterized it as such that Mrs. Harrison complained to him of it, as well as the attentions of the young men of the house, which were being thrust upon her. She did not care to receive them, and Judge Twiggs said, as Mrs. Harrison had been put under his care by her mother, he searched the city for a suitable place, and finally went to Mrs. Thereas on Green, street and stated put under his care by her mother, he searched the city for a suitable place, and finally went to Mrs. Thomas, on Green street, and stated the circumstances to her, and urged Mrs. Thomas to accept Mrs. Harrison in her house, and not only be a friend but a mother to her. Judge Twiggs said he called for Mrs. Harrison, in a carriage, and removed her on an inclement day. The reason why Mrs. Harrison went under an assumed name, Judge Twiggs explained d was because she was afraid Mr. Harrison would find her and steal her baby boy from her. The judge told her he would protecther, and that the law would also, and she need not be afraid of any harm coming to her, and when she went to Mrs. Thomas she went by her right name, Mrs. Harrison. He said his visits to Mrs. Harrison were only of a professional nature. He said Mrs. Harrison was young enough to be his child; that he had a son older than she was. He said Mrs. Harrison was under his care, and he only treated her as a lawyer and a gentleman. He pronounced Mrs. Palmer's affidavit that upon one occasion he had forced his way into her house to see Mrs. Harrison, absolutely false. He said he learned that Mrs. Palmer did not want him to visit the house as it was the wish of Mr. Joe Graham, a boarder in her house, who disliked him for some cause which he had never learned.

Judge Twiggs admitted sending Mrs. Harrison the case of beer alluded to yesterday, at her request, and she paid for it.

son the case of beer alluded to yesterday, at her request, and she paid for it.

THE MOTHER TESTIFIES.

Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. Harrison's mother, was the next witness. She said she knew her daughter had suffered want and misery. One day she came to her parents' home for her father's protection. Mrs. Dennis said Mrs. Harrison would not let her know of any of her troubles, because she knew she had married Mr. Harrison against her will. She told of how Mrs. Harrison came to her house one day and fainted away, which she at the time supposed was from sickness, but afterwards learned that it was from weakness, as she had nothing to eat at home. Mrs. Dennis even went so far as to state that Mr. Harrison had even sold the bed which was the only one they had for use. Mrs. Dennis said she did not think Mr. Harrison was worthy of belief.

Mr. Dennis next went over the whole story, which had already been related, and he, too, said he did not believe Mr. Harrison's character beyond reproach.

Mr. Graham was put back on the stand, and he defended Mrs. Palmer's character and the reputation of her boarding house. He denied having acted intimately or improperly with Mrs. Palmer, as Mrs. Harrison alleged. He accounted for Mrs. Palmer visiting his room. His explanation was that she was waiting on him while he was sick.

Mr. Saunders also testified in behalf of Mrs. Palmer's good character, and the good reputation of the house.

Mr. Harrison also went back on the stand, and denied part of Mrs. Harrison also went back on the stand, and denied part of Mrs. Harrison also went back on the stand, and in rebutted of Mr. Graham's statements which reterred to his attempting to shoot her with a pistol. THE MOTHER TESTIFIES.

ALL ABOUT A CHILD. to the good character and reputation Mr. Harrison and his parents bore in Greenville,

A SOUTH CAROLINA CASE IN A GROB-

Judge Twiggs introduced the following letter from Mr. Harrison to Mrs. Dennis, which is a typical message to a mother-in-law:

Columbia, S. C., November 16, 1890.—Mrs. E. Dennis, 8 Friend Street, Charleston, S. C. Madame: If it will be of any consolation to you, I am happy indeed to let you know that you have looked your last time on my child. You robbed one man of his rightful offspring, and perhaps you would like to have done so by another, and you can remember this much, that whatever evil becomes of this affair you are to blame. If you had let us alone in the beginning of our married life, things would have been different from what they are.

here is only one thing that will ever bring my id back to Augusta, that is for you to leave, or down and die. You have been the curse of ir daughter's life, and you have made every er place miserable where your magnanimous m has shown itself. You bear no love for my deared and you never have affection because every other place miserable where your magnanimous form has shown itself. You bear no love for my child, and you only show affection because every one else loves him. I am more than sorry that I was compelled to take my own in the manner I did, for I can but picture his mother's grief, but I am indeed happy to know that for one time you are beat, and take a fool's advice and quietly submit to the inevitable, and for one time in your life persuade your daughter to do the right thing, which is to forever get out of your sight before you drive her to everlasting ruin. You thought to frighten me by the remark that your father will be home tomorrow. Captain Dennis is too much of a gentleman to take any notice of your infernal devitry. You should mate with Mrs. Whitney. It would make a beautiful pair. I know you are almost at the point of failing, so I will close, hoping you may speedly recover from your present grief, and that I may never lay eyes on you again. I am your loving son-in-law,

ARGUMENT BEGINS.

ARGUMENT BEGINS.

Argument was commenced at 1 o'clock, and Mr. Joseph Ganahi spoke half an hour, when court adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon. Judge Twiggs this afternoon spoke in vindication of his own honor and the purity of Mrs. Harrison's character. He said he did not claim to be a pious man, but was a gentleman. He seemed very deeply affected by the insinuations that had been made against him. His entire speech was was full of eloquence, and his appeal in behalf of the injured lady for the restoration of the child to her care was one of the finest speechs ever heard made in the courthouse. He so pathetically spoke of the suffering of the noble woman at the hands of Mr. Harrison, whose treatment he characterized as brutality, that it brought tears to the eyes of Mrs. Harrison's father, and was so heart-striring that the audience could not refrain from applauding dience could not refrain from applauding Judge Twiggs. At the conclusion of his argu-ment he was cheered and applauded in the courtroom—such a scene never witnessed becould not refrain from applauding Twiggs. At the conclusion of his argu-promptly, and remanded the child to the care of its mother.

"But in doing sof" Judge Roney said, "I will prepare an order allowing the father to see his child under certain circumstances."

The judge said he would not be so cruel as to deny the father access to his child. Judge Roney said the testimony failed to prove that Mrs. Harrison was an unfit person to have charge of the child. For the most there was only mere suspicion of her immorality. He honorably exonerated Judge Twiggs from the insinuation that had been made, and expressed his opinion that Mrs. Harrison was a pure and virtuous lady.

RINGGOLD, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—While
Mrs. Laura Trimmier was out in'her flower garden watering flowers, she chanced to look up in a tree, and saw a sight once seen never to be forgotten. It was a covey of about fifteen birds around a snake. The snake had stealthily crawled up the tree and charmed the little birds. After looking a few moments at the reptile Mrs. Trimmier decided to "fix" him. So she went into the house and procuring her husband's shotgun, repaired to the battle ground, and taking good aim, she fired.
She snake tumbled out of the tree deod, but she gave him the other barrel just for luck.
His snakeship measured exactly five feet and one inch. He was immediately hung up for rain.

Carton, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—Judge Teasley brought us in a radish of remarkable and unusual growth, not as to size but shape. It very closely resembles the right hand half closed with the fingers pointing upward. The main stem looks very much like the palm and wrist and the five roots, different in size, the five digits of the hand. On each of these five roots is a kind of growth resembling finger nails. Judge Teasley is a fine gardener and farmer, and his toil in this line seems to have left a deep impress in the soil, and reproduced to a certain extent the hand that has held the hoe and guided the plow in the preparation of the soil and cultivation of the crops sown and planted. This radish is a very peculiar and

Tableau. STATE FAIR THE TALK.

Will Macon Lose the Exhibition and Will Atlanta Obtain It? MACON Ga., June 12.-[Special.]-State fair the talk now.
Will Macon lose it and will Atlanta win it?

is the talk now.

Will Macon lose it and will Atlants win it?
That is the question.

Secretary Jemison will say nothing, and will neither affirm nor deny the rumors afloat.

He has written a letter to the council, but what that letter contains no one knows but himself and the state fair committee. It is believed it notifies the council that unless their claim for $1,022 is paid they will consider the contract broken, and will hold no fair this year.

It is even thought by some that the letter tells the council that the agricultural society aiready considers the contract broken, and is in no way inclined to have it reconsidered.

It is believed by others that the society will go on with this year's fair, but has expressed their intention of holding no more in Macon. To tell the truth, it seems to many that the society is by no means loath to change their fairs from Macon to Atlanta, and that the city of Macon will take no active steps to prevent such a course. It is known that Atlanta wants the fair and will do much to secure it, and it is thought the society has been for some time in possession of propositions from that city. It is difficult to surmise what the result will be, but there is evidently a split, and whether or not it can be mended is a question.

While all this talk is going on others are whether or not it can be mended is a question.

While all this talk is going on others are talking of the prospect of organizing an exposition company, and many say it can be done in ten days after the agricultural society has made public its intention of pulling up stakes in Macon, should they do so. No matter what happens, it may be put down as pretty certain that Macon is to have a fair this year. If by the agricultural society it will be a good one, or if the people of Macon alone it will be good. If the latter, every effort will be exerted and every dollar spent to make it eclipse anything ever seen here.

The letter sent to conneil will be read on next Tuesday night, but until this time it is not probable that its contents will be made public.

A shors time since, Henry Mansfield and Marion Crosby, of Mitchell county, pleaded guilty to illicit distilling, but, as they were farmers, Judge Speer allowed them to return home to finish their crops. They were to return to Macon and he sentenced on July 20th. This morning they appeared at the courthouse and said they wished to serve out their sentence as once, as the thought of what was hanging over them preyed upon their minds so much that they were greatly troubled. They presented the court with a petition from a large number of citizens of Mitchell cannity certifying to their good char-

CLOTHING FIRMS FAIL.

New York, Goes Under.

New York, June 12.—The London and Liverpool Clothing Company, at Nos. 86 and 88 Bowery, and Mack & Co., clothing dealers, at Nos. 463 to 467 Broadway, failed today. Both concerns were owned by the same parties, Isador Rosenheim and Isaac S Mack, the partnership of the Bowery store being under the style of Isador Rosenheim & Co., and the Broadway store as Mack & Co.

Rosenheim and Mack made 'a general assignment, without preference to Lewis M. Hornthal, senior partner of the firm of Hornthal, Weissman & Co. The firm claimed a capital of about $100,000, and carried an average stock of about $200,000 in the Bowery store, where the sales amounted to have lost $35,000 by the failure of F. Mayer & Co., in 1883, through endorsements. Mack does not think the liabilities will exceed $250,-000 to $275,000, the greater part of which was for merchandise, about 10 per cent being for borrowed money. He can give no idea of the ets, which embraced a very large stock in Husband's Property.

Nashville, Tenn., June 12.—[Special.]— Chancellor Allison decided an interesting case here today. In slavery days the wife of a negro named McCreary was suing to recover property willed by McCreary upon his death to a second wife. McCreary was a slave in Alabama on the breaking out of the late war, and he enlisted in the federal army. He left a wife in Alabama, but never returned to her after the war, coming here instead and marrying again.

after the war, coming here instead and marrying again.

He died a few years ago, leaving considerable property acquired through pensions received from the government. It is this property for which his first wife was suing. The defense relied upon the ground that the marriage with the first wife being a slave marriage, was illegal. The complainants relied upon establishing the validity of the marriage under an act of congress providing that all slave marriages, where the parties were living together at the time of the passage of said act, should be legal. The proof, however, was clear that McCreary was not living with his first wife at the time of the passage of the act, and upon this complainant's bill was dismissed.

RETURNED TO THE LEASE SYSTEM. The Argument of the County Board at Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., June 12.—Four years ago Jefferson county abandoned the lease system as to her county convicts and put them to work building macadamized roads. In that time they have constructed sixty-four miles of road. Today the court of county commissioners voted by a majority of one to return to the lease system. The argument urged in favor of the lease system is that it will pay to hire convicts out and use the proceeds to build roads with free labor. This experiment of road-working has been regarded as of great importance, because it holds out a hope of relief from the convict lease system which is felt to be a blot on the state.

Hard on the Sealers.

San Francisco, June 12,—The fleet of sailing sealing vessels belonging to this port have lost one of their best hunting grounds. For years it has been the custom of the sealers to spend several months in the south Pacific. Last season two vessels returned here with exceptionally large catches from Maquaric island. The action of the United States in barring sealers from Behring sea caused the Tasmania officials to pass an act prohibiting seal catching in the south Pacific within the extensive sea boundaries. Sealers found near the islands will risk arrest and forfeiture of their vessels. This is considered a hard blow to the sealing fleet of this port. Hard on the Sealers.

From The Milton (Alpharetta) Democrat.
Shall Georgia be represented at the World's Columbian Fair in 1893? This is a very im portant question, and should not be hastily disposed of. The opportunity for placing our re-sources and attractions before the world which will then and there be offered, will be such a we cannot afford to let pass unimproved. That Georgians feel this is abundantly proven by the enthusiasm of the convention which met in Atlanta May 6 to consider this question. But very many feel that there is a constitutional barrier, and every true patriot hesitates to override the constitution. Now, it seems to us that there is a way to reach the desired end without in anywise violating the letter or spirit of the constitution. Georgia is pre-eminently an agricultural state, and her people have recently so recognized it by taking the agricultural department into their own hands, and cently so recognized it by taking the agricultural department into their own hands, and electing from their number officers to preside over this great interest. This department up to this time has collected and paid into the treasury nearly a million of dollars. This money is collected from the farmers, but they have received very little benefit from it. Colonel P. L. Mynatt, one of the framers of the constitution and a distinguished jurist, says it is perfectly constitutional for the legislature to appropriate any amount they see fit for the agricultural department, and specify in what way it shall be used for the good of the state. Why, then, should not the legislature appropriate whatever sum they see fit to the agricultural department for the purpose of having Georgia represented at Chicago, and require the head of the department to account for the use of said money to the governor, as for other moneys passing through his hands. We make this suggestion for what it is worth, and invite investigation and discussion. Our sister states will be represented at Chicago, and some of them have already appropriated large sums to defray the expense of their exhibits. The plan mentioned above will be the easiest and least expensive way to accomplish what the late convention certainly shows to be the wish of the people.

SOME CHICKEN STORIES. With Which the People of LaFayette While Away the Hours.

LAFAYETTE, Ga., June 12.—[Special.]—
Some wonderful chicken stories were told here recently. In a group of gentlemen in LaFayette, a discussion arose as to the relative merits of Georgia and Florida chickens. A Georgian remarked: "E. L. Culberson has the best trained chickens in the world. When one of them flies into the garden its owner yells out, "Come out of that garden," and instantly the chicken flies back and hides out for a day or two through fear of getting a severe scolding."

The gentleman from Florida remarked: "That's nothing. There is a breed of chickens in Florida, of the frizzly variety, known as the Shepard chicken, that can make any ordinary calculation. I was present one day when the proprietor of this wonderful breed of fowls called them together, and asked a little rooster that had not yet taken his second lesson in crowing: 'How many does twice nine make?' The rooster walked out immediately and scratched plainly on the ground, 18."

Another gentleman from Florida remarked: "Oh, yes. I knew the Florida Shepard chicken well. I remember distinctly the first time I met this breed. I was at the home of one of my friends in Florida who owned a large number of this intelligent breed. My friend wanted to kill one for dinner, and called up two middle-aged roosters and pointed out to them the particular chicken he wanted to Away the Hours.

More Light for the Chronicle.

We have much amusement these hot days in watching the lugubrious efforts of The Augusta Chronicle to say something on the silver question. Its last effort is perhaps the most amusing of all. It takes a chunk of Carnegie's article on the A B C of money, rolls it as a sweet morsel under its tongu for awhile, and spits it out with a splutter. The debris of this ungraceful operation covers nearly two columns of Thursday'

The Chronicle continues to rattle on the same old nonsense about gold, and adopts eagerly Mr. Carnegie's ridiculous statement that the government stamp adds nothing to the value of the coin. It is impossible to entirely prevent the fluctuations of either metal, and at times gold, as well as silver, has been worth less bullion than it was in the coin. Such things, even under natural conditions, may happen for a day or an hour, or perhaps for nths at a time. All the government can do is to stamp on the coin that figure which the long run of years has shown it to be worth in comparison with the other precious metal. Since 1850, the production of silver has been much less than the output of gold, and there is no reason under heaven for the depression in silver but the general demonetization of it by European nations and the United States. The partial return to silver colnage in America was the first important step in the great reaction which will put silver where it was before. The question is a much simpler one than it first appears. The sophistry of the monometallists has beset it with a cloud of irrevelant matter, which makes the question appear abstruse and difficult. In its last analysis, the question resolves itself into one of supply and demand, and it is a very simple person who cannot see that the removal of the demand for anything would depress the price, and the restoration of the demand would restore the price. That is the whole thing in a nutshell. What complicates it in this case is the fact that the government is obliged, in the nature of things, to set the price before the demand is restored, and before the effect of the new demand is apparent in the market price. But the act of setting the price must create a demand and must raise the price. That is not a matter of choice. It only remains then for sensible men to calculate as closely as they can what will be the market value of bullion under the demand tization. Remonetization is steadily gain-ing in favor in Europe. Mr. Goschen, chancellor of the exchequer in England, is on that line, and the governor of the Bank of England is said to be a conservative bi-In 1887 Mr. Cleveland sent Edward Atkinson to Europe to investigate and report upon the monetary conditions there, with view to ascertaining what steps might be taken for the free coinage of gold and silver alike. In his letter to President Cleveland, free coinage, and having made this calculation to stamp the coin in accordance with it.

It is just this process which led to stamping a dollar on 3711 grains of silver. In this in stance the calculation was verified by the whole experience of the world prior to 1873, which is to say, prior to the general demone transmitting Mr. Atkinson's report, Secretary Bayard said: Mr. Atkinson was further informed that you felt it to be your dufy to relax no effort to effect a co-operation among the leading commercial nations to establish such a fixed international ratio of universal equivalent between the two precious metals as will permit the free coinage of Here was the only democratic administration in a quarter of a century inaugurating an active movement for the free coinage of gold and silver alike. The report of Mr. Atkinson is an exceedingly full and interesting one, and in it he takes the position that the demand for silver will steadily increase in proportion to ply, and that in the course of time this fact alone will bring it back to the place it formerly held. Here are itwo paragraphs worth considering:

For reasons which will be fully given hereafter, silver had been unduly discredited and depressed in its price as bullion in Europe, while it still retained substantially its full value, or purchasing power, among the vast populations of other continuats, among whom it is and must remain the principal and necessary money metal for use in the few of coins.

misdirected efforts to restore silver to its former ratio, resting wholly upon statutes of legal tender. I have reason to believe that my efforts in this direction may have partly removed the dread of a prospective "avalanche of silver," as it is sometimes called, from the North American continent, and especially from the United States, and that this fear, which has been perhaps the most potent cause of the unwillingness even to consider the question of bimetallism, may be wholly removed by the further investigation as to the relative production of silver and gold which may ensue.

This gives Mr. Atkinson's position as a conservative himseallist. It is almost iden-conservative bimetallist. It is almost identically the position Secretary Windom occupied. Both believed in the necessity of using both of the precious metals in the currency, and both give absolutely unanswerable arguments against the foolishness of Carnegie's late article. Take, for instance, these paragraphs from Mr. Windom's report

There is, in fact, no known accumulation of sil ver bullion anywhere in the world. Germany long since disposed of her stock of melted silver coins, partly by sale, partly by recoinage into her own new subsidiary coins, and party for use in coining for Egypt. Only recently it became necessary to purchase silver for the Egyptian coinage exe-cuted at the mint at Berlin. Nor need there be any serious apprehension that any considerable part of the stock of silver coin of Europe would be shipped to the United States for deposit for treasury notes.

It is safe to say there is no stock of silver coin in Europe which is not needed for business pur-

With these statements from the secretary of the treasury and the expert whom Mr Cleveland sent to Europe, Mr. Carnegie's talk about a silver avalanche becomes

Think Over These Figures. A statistician who has been digging into the census reports and sifting out suggestive facts and figures, presents the following general summary: Twenty years ago it was estimated that the producing classes owned three-fourths of the wealth of the nation; today only about one-fourth of the nation's wealth is in the hands of the producing classes, yet the wealth of the nation has been doubled in the same period. They have lost, in comparison to the increase of wealth, two-thirds of their wealth in the last twenty years. The cause for this can best be found in a study of a few fig ures. The wealth of the nation in this period, according to census reports, has increased at the rate of about 4 per cent per annum, which has been added to the wealth by the labor of the producing classes. The average dividends on capital for the same period has been 7 per cen per year. Under our present condition of society, capital and labor are combined in almost every branch of human industry. Now, it will be seen by a comparison of the productive power of laborand the dividends paid to capital, that capital has and the dividends paid to capital, that capital has been receiving as wages the full production of wealth and absorbing the former possessions of the wealth producer, the latter class losing 68% per cent of their wealth in twenty years, and the capitalists gaining 68% per cent. The estimated wealth of the nation today is $66,000,000,000,000, of which 30,000 capitalists are said to own $36,250,-000,000, 63,000,000 people owning $29,750,000,000; 250,000 capitalists are said to own three-fourths of 220,000 capitalists are said to own three-fourths o the nation's wealth. If there was an even 63,000, 000 inhabitants in the nation, the wealth would b justify the gravest apprehensions. It is useless to argue that if 250,000 men can lawfully absorb three-fourths of the wealth of 63,000,000 people it is all right, and they must be allowed to go ahead and absorb the other 25 per cent. The people are not going to take this view of the situation. When 63,000,000 toilers see the products of their labor swallowed up so rapidly by a privileged and protected few, they very naturally see greater evils coming in the near future, and feel that it is time to act on the defensive. Self-preservation is the first law of our nature, and before the masses will give up everything to the classes they will, if necessary, try some new departures in legislation and political economy. We must try the virtues of tariff reform, graded income tax, a larger volume of currency, and a financial system that will not be under the control of a few speculators in Wall street.

It is a struggle of peculiar interest and vital importance. Startling theories are in the air-some of them sound, and some of them unsound. Out of clashing ideas and conflicting policies, and out of the focal heat of free discussion, some reform may come that will be for the common good of Newspaper Reading.

The arch-deacon of Carlisle is said to have warned the clergy against the growing habit of newspaper reading.

It is the opinion of this high church auauthority that the literary taste of the clergy is on the decline, and he attributes it mainly to the fact that preachers as well as laymen are becoming the victims of the ephemeral newspapers and magazines of the

The opposition of a few church dignataries to the popular habit of newspaper reading is not likely to accomplish anything. The preachers have found that the learning of the past is of little use to them if they exclude the knowledge of the present age. In order to reach the people of today it is necessary to understand them and know some thing of their affairs. That map of busy life called a newspaper supplies this information, and the successful preacher, teacher or leader of men cannot do without it.

If the arch-deacon simply meant to say that newspaper reading injures a writer's literary style, he was too sweeping in his condemnation. In one of Anthony Trollope's novels a young writer is made to ask his mentor for some advice concerning style. "Is it style that you want?" was the reply. "Go and get it from the newspapers!"

And there is something in this piece of advice. If the clergymen of the church of England do not fall below the level of the leaders in The Times, The Telegraph and The Chronicle they will get along very

The fact is, newspaper reading makes a man all the more anxious to increase his stock of learning, if he is built that way. If he is not cut out for scholarly and literary pursuits newspapers will not hurt him, and books will not change his make-up. The newspaper is the book of the people, and no man can afford to leave it unread.

A student of prison life at Sing Sing gives it as his deliberate judgment that reformation is impossible, when criminals are crowded together under one root.

In a penitentiary the prisoners sentenced for a term of years for small offenses go out into the world after their release more wicked than before, and plunge still deeper into the black abyse of crime.

Another thing has been observed at Sing Sing. While the prisoners do not derive any moral benefit from their association with each other, the officials, whose duty it is to watch them, seem to be affected by the contagious iniquity around them. The re-ported heavy defalcations among some of the recent officials of the prison will make startling reading when the story is given to the public.

educates the prisoners into malefactors, but tempts their guards to become criminals. If Sing Sing is a fair sample of our penal institutions the whole business needs a thorough overhauling.

Lady Mordaunt was the prince's friend in his younger days, and now that he is a grandfather Lady Brooke leaps into notoriety with him.

It is a bad and a black list-this roll of British society. Not very long ago Sir Charles Dilke went down in one of the worst scandals of the age. Then there was the miserable Colin Campbell divorce suit. Look at Lord Mandeville, supported by a concert singer. Take the case of the dissolute music hall woman who is now countes of Clancarty. Nor can we leave out the marquis of Hartington and the dowager duchess of Manchester. Only the other day Captain Verney was found guilty of the vilest of crimes. The Cleveland street case. hushed up by the government, was another infamous affair, involving members of the prince of Wales's household.

Royalty and aristocracy in England see to be too utterly wicked and dissolute for reformation. Bold, bad and black, a viler lot of titled vagrants was never forced upon honest toilers for a support.

It is all right from one point of view. It will breed revolution. One of these fine days the entire British nation will be in a ferment, and these vicious princelings and their favorites will be sent to Halifax or hot-potted.

THE ALBANY, N. Y., JOURNAL says: There is THE ALBANY, N. Y., JOURNAL says: There is no mistaking the sentiment of the southern democracy toward Mr. Cleveland. It has undergone a radical, if not a complete change during the past six months. The action of the Kentucky convention and the utterances of men like Senators Colquitt and Pugh are representative expressions of democratic opinion. They do not find their inspiration in personal hostility because they are made by men who in the past have adhered to Mr. Clevelandwith a devritoniakin to idolatry. On the contravy there is abundant swidence they are made by men who in the past have adhered to Mr. Cleveland with a devotioniskin to idolatry. On the contrary there is abundant evidence that the southern objection to Mr. Cleveland is based on considerations of party principles and policy. While thoroughly in harmony with southern sentiment on the tariff question, he has failed to take position in favor of free silver, as well as free trade, but has seen fit openly and positively to rebute his party for entertaining financial views which he deems to be fraught with danger to the material interests of the country. As a democrate he represents his party on but one of the two leading issues of the hour, and as such he cannot subscribe freely and fully to the democratic principles nor command the united support of his party.

R. Jones took command. He died in 1861, when Colonel G. T. Anderson, of the Eleventh regiment, took command. He was afterwards promoted to brigadier general, and remained in command to the end of the war. The Fifty-ninth Georgia regiment and Rylander's battalion served in the brigade. Part of the war it was known as "Tige" Anderson's brigade. It was in Hood's division, Longstreet's corps, Army of Northern Virginia, and was in most of the battles fought by that army. When Longstreet's corps, came to Tennessee Anderson's Longstreet's corps came to Tennessee Anderson' brigade was detached and sent to Charleston, S C., where it remained one month. It then rejoined the corps at Lookout mountain. Three companies of the Seventh regiment were made up in Cobb county—one from Powder Springs, one from Marietta and one from Roswell.

The Atlantians, who by the way, are among the most prominen; people of that city, remarked to us last evening that they were well pleased with St. Simon's and the hotel and all the surroundings. They would like to remain these until fall. From The Carnesville, Ga., Tribune.

Our hands seemed to be in the way and we plunged them up to the elbow in our pocket, and started over Atlanta about half bent. We began bowing and scraping, but found that every one was mad and would not speak. We finally came was mad and would not speak. We finally came upon a little fellow popping corn and asked him to give us "Chicken in the Bread Tray." He smiled and said, "This is no music box, it's a corn popper." We kinder sidled off, and excused ourselves. The most noted places we visited were The Constitution building, the new capitol, Grant park and the Oakland cemetery. It is certainly a sight, to one that's never seen much, to go in the new capitol and look over the great city of Atlanta. You don't have any idea—you who have never been up there—what a beautiful sight it is. One can see all over Atlanta and everywhere else. We shall never forget the scene, as we stood looking upon this fair city.

Auburn Demonstration. AUBURN. Ala., June 11.—Editor Constitu-tion: Your special telegram of the 10th instant, from Montgomery, in regard to "rumors" from Auburn about the demonstration of certain cadets and others in favor of Captain Kolb, and touching certain other matters, deserves Kolb, and touching certain other matters, deserves some correction.

I was present on the occasions when Captain Kolb was cheered, and I have since heard the subject discussed in various circles, and it is the opinion of those best informed that at no time were there more than twenty or twenty-five persons old and young together, out of many hundreds, joining in the demonstration towards Captain Kolb, and it is due to truth to state that on one of the occasions some of the demonstrations were intended as jeers instead of "cheers" of approval. Two or three times there were small manifestations in his times there were small manifestations in his times there were small manifestations in his favor.

Captain Kolb has a great host of warm and true friends here, among them many of the prominent people who have stuck to him "through thick and thim" in all things save in the issues "betwirk Kolb and Jones." As "between" the two—"Kolb and Jones." As "between" the two—"Kolb and Jones." I have the very highest authority for saying that neither the faculty of Polytechn ic institute, the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Alabama, nor the board of directors, contains a majority of "Kolb men." Among the faculty, embracing about twenty gentlemen, it is not known that there is an "anti-Kolb" man, although the town does contain many "anti-Kolbs." Captain Kolb once lived here, and had his official headquarters here somewhat in connection with the agricultural college; and when he went away he took with him away from this community the office which many claim should have been kept here at the seat of the agricultural college of the state. For this action of the commissioner of agriculture, Captain Kolb has never been forgiven by many of his old friends here; and those persons are, and have been, rendy to unite in any scheme—political or otherwise—that will work retailation on the captain.

But as far as "politics" is concerned, neither alightest expression of political opinions. So far as my observation and hearing go, the faculty has its hands and heart and brain too full of arduous duties in the management of the wast literary and scientific interests committed to their care here, to dabble in politics, and I know, furthermore, that iff there is any issue "betwire Kolb and Jones." that iff there is any issue "betwind and Jones," there is not a majorit culty who would show any hand in fave in Rolb, for the majority are certain fovernor Jones, first and last and all the nms. So also of the board of trustees of the stitution. You may put this down as a beat or a top fact, just as you please, or you may it simply the "naked iruth" if you prefer to press it that way. I am on the "outside" in a sitton to know, in the glasses "twint Kolb-tones." I have no samities "twint Kolbjustice; and what I write now is in the fac-fairness to the public.

As far as the matter of "removals" in the fac-uity of the institution here is concerned, I am au-thorized to say this much: In the recent meeting of the board of trustees there was not the slight-est mention made in any way even suggesting such a thing. The board, who are all men of broad and liberal views, men who have the good of the institution so at heart that they would no broad and liberal views, men who have the good of the institution so at heart that they would not allow any petty political spite—even were such a thing to endeavor to creep in—to influence their actions in the management of the trust committed to them. The board is eminently satisfied with the work performed in the past by each and every member of the faculty. Instead of any changes being made there were two new chairs created, and competent gentlemen chosen to fill these two chairs. At the experimental farm, in connection with the college, for a number of years there has been conducted a dairy, the experiment being made in order to determine the practicability of producing butter urder certain conditions. While the reports made touching the experiment were satisfactory in one respect, the board decided to discontinue the dairy feature of the farm, and as a consequence there was no further appropriation made for running that branch of the business, and hence that department will be abolished in the future. Mr. Isaac Ross, who owns an extensive dairy farm in the county, and who has heretofore had the contract for managing and developing the dairy interest of the college, will transfer his large herd of fine thorough brided cattle to his own place, near Opelika, where he will establish at an early day one of the largest creameries in the south.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION: There appears in columns of your paper this morning a notice of coca-cola," a preparation which I have been manufacturing and selling largely in this and other communities, for the past three years, as a soda fountain beverage, to the principal dealers, who have dispensed it to the very best people in the community which they serve. For nearly twenty years I have lived in Atlanta and been known prominently as a druggist. Among the citizens of this place I think I have a great many warm friends to whom I can refer for endorsement; that I have endeavored to live above reproach, never manifesting a desire to build up my own interests at the expense of theirs.

As to coca-cola, if your "thoughtful citizen" will find one person in all this country who is a cocaine user by reason of having drank coca-cola, then I plead gullty to their charges. In a pamental distribute at much exphlet which I issue and distribute at much ex-pense, I plainly state that among a great many other things which enter into its composition we use coca leaves. I have no objections to stating just here that one gallon of coca-cala syrup, which makes 128 glasses, as dispensed from the fountains, contains one-half ounce of green coca leaves, which are treated with ounce of green coca leaves, which are treated with hot water.

If your thoughtful citizen and prominent physician have got as much sense as they lack regard for correct speaking, they can readily see that a gallon of this syrup would not produce any decided effects attributable to cocaine.

Without any investigation as to who is using coca-cols I feel confident that I can truthfully say that every prominent minister, a number of our most skilled physicians together with nine-tenths of the business men, including all professions, are and have been for at least three years constant patrons of coca cols. Because a man once tries it and finds it to be a prompt restorer of his energies and goes back and gets it again and again should not be an argument against its use any more than against the recall of our family physician who restores to life and health the members of our family. That some people use too much of it, is not its fault nor mine, but I have yet to hear of a single case having been injured thereby. The popularity of the beverage is caused as much by the judicious advertising that has been done for it as by its own genuine merits.

We trust that as you have doubtless carelessly

We trust that as you have doubtless carelessly permitted the attack to be made, you will as carefully insert this plain statement of my side of the case. Respectfully, the army cannot sit after 3 o'clock, except for special reason, and this custom, it appears, we have inherited from the methods in vogue in her majesty's kingdom. But why do you suppose the English court martial never sits after 3 o'clock?

Because—and this is the humorous part of the story—100 or more years ago the average Englishman of position was not expected to be sober man of position was not expected to be sober after 3 o'clock. He had had his three or four bottles and was gradually sinking into a stupor. So to win the ends of justice the court swore off at

> The Predicament of Two Young Wom Two young women, very gaudily deessed about the head and very much bedraggied about the feet, went boldly into Manager Mart Hanley's office, in Harrigan's theater, a short time ago, says The Sun, and handed to him a sheet of paper on which were a few lines of writing and several signatures. Mr. Hanley looked at them and sighed heavily.

have applied everywhere, and no matter where we go we hear the same old story that there are more applicants than there are vacancies."

In answer to tother questions they told a sad story of their struggles. For two weeks previous to giving up the fight by the manager of the company no salaries were paid to the supernumeraries, and the little money that they had saved had been spent for board and lodging. Then came the smash and the members of the company began running about in search of engagements. The company had come from Chicago, and very lew of them had money enough to pay their way home, The women said that they were threatened with ejectment from their boarding placess and were anxious to go back to Chicago.

Mr. Hanley put his name on the list for a subscription, and the women thanked him and tripped away. Then Mr. Hanley said:

"That is the other side of the theatrical business. Those girls on the stage were dressed up in tights and spangles, and wore trinkets that finshed and sparkled like genuine jewels. At the same time they were in danger of beling thrown out of their home in a strange city. This is not by any means an uncommon occurrence. You would be surprised to know how often the theatrical managers in this and other big cities are called upon to contribute for the relief of women who are left in just such plight as these were. I know the company these girls were with, for a dozen members of it have been here looking for work. A number of them succeeded in getting small parts in one or two of the theaters, and two of the girls, after a long and hard struggle, in which they were threat-ened with all sorts of horrible misfortunes, were compelled to accept work in a concert hall, where they earn gill a week by coming out in tights and showing themselves on the stage. Just as soon as they earn money enough to pay their fare to Chicago they will go home. It is likely that their career on the stage will then cease, and that they will be perfectly satisfied to work for small pay and live quietly wit udge Van Epps Calls the Alumni Comto Meet Next Wednesday.

THE ENDOWMENT FUND

A Plan Proposed.

Judge Howard Van Epps has issued a call for a meeting of the committee of the alumni of the State university appointed to devise a plan for the endowment of the institution. The meeting is called for next Wednesday, the 17th, and it will be held at Athens.

Below is a letter sent by Judge Van Epps to each member of the committee:

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12, 1891.—My Dear Sir: At the last meeting of the committee of nine of the alumni of the State university appointed by Hon. P. W. Meldrim of Savannah, it was resolved that the time and place of the next meeting of the committee be fixed by the chairman. It was also resolved that each member of the committee should, at the meeting thus called, present in writing his own views and suggestions as to a plan by which the university might be permanently endowed. In pursuance of that resolution, I hereby call a meeting of the committee to convene at Athens, Ga., next Wednesday, June 17th, and I carnessity press upon you the importance of formulating your own views in writing, in order that the committee my select, among all presented, the most feasible plan to accomplish the purpose in view.

Please signify to me whether you can attend the meeting at the time and place mentioned. Very truly yours, Howard VAN EPPS, Chairman.

A TALK WITH JUDGE VAN EPPS.

A TALK WITH JUDGE VAN EPPS. Yesterday a Constitution reporter asked Judge Van Epps if he had any plan in mind for raising the endowment fund. His reply for raising the endowment fund. His reply was:

"My idea is to raise the whole sum by a plan of life insurance. Let each of the alimni insure his life for $1,000, the premiums to be paid in ten annual payments. There are few who cannot afford to do that much for the institution. I have a proposition from a standard insurance company showing that the annual premium on $1,000 for the age of thirty years would be $33.80. The plan would include all the graduates and take in the senior class for succeeding years. In time this would bring to the institution a vast sum of money. If the graduating class averaged fifty it would mean $50,000 a year from that source. I would also suggest the formation of a state society of the alumni and if any man should, through misfortune, be unable to carry the insurance after he had started, the society could keep it going. I estimate that there are 300 or 400 of the alumni now the society could keep it going. I estimate that there are 300 or 400 of the alumni now with good incomes and able to carry $1,000 insurance for the university. If the plan can be successfully managed it seems to me we ought to in time secure a large endowment."

anish Californian's Story—Politic ands Accumulated for Political Pur-poses—Cocos Island Outdone.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 8.—[Special.]— Mexico, as many writers have said, abounds in tales of buried treasure. Whole libraries could be filled with legends of the treasure of Montezuma, which lies in some cave of the Cordillerss, ready to upset the gold standard of the divilized world, as soon as some lucky explorer discovers the guarded secret of its rest-ing place. Other libraries, too, might be crowded with the equally fascinating stories of the Guatemozin treasure, hidden by the last ace of the Aztec line, under the waters of the Mexican lagunas.
In truth, Mexico is a land where uncounted ns lie hidden. It is the India of the western hemisphere. Though many stories of buried gold are but airy nothings, yet others have a real historical foundation. One of these strange yet wholly reasonable and coherent stories of lost treasure has come down from the days of the greatest of the Spanish viceroys of Mexico, the proud and masterful Revillagigedo. Unlike most of the Mexican treasure tales it deals with Baja, Cal., and the coasts of the sea of Cortez, now the Gulf of California, and in fact it is the only island treasure story that I have ever heard from Mexican sources.

In 1792 Captain Colnet, an English fur trader, cruising up and down the Pacific coast, was seized, with his ship at the port of Nootka, in Van Couver island, by the Spanish authorities, who then claimed the whole coast to Alaska. If this claim could have been maintained, there would never have been any British Columbia, but the English government, true to its traditions, took such prompt and energetic measures that the king of Spain disavowed the ambitious plans of the famous viceroy of Mexico, and exemplary damages were paid to Colnet and to England. these negotiations Captain Colnet, first taken to San Blas, and thence to the City of Mexico, was treated with such courtesy by Revillagigedo that in the year after his release, named a group of islands off the coast of Baja, Cal., after the viceroy. These are the islands of that hidden treasure whose story has been given me by one of the most promi nent members of an old California family.

But the history of these islands reaches much further back. The great Spanish navigator, Fernando de Grijalva, discovered the group in 1523, but only bestowed the name of Saint as upon the principal island. Other exlorers have named the same island Socorro. but since the name first given ought to be preserved, Saint Thomas, though also a duplicate name, will be the one used in this narrative. The Spanish government long ago tried to stablish a colony on the Revillagigedo islands, but failed on account of the lack of springs or rainfall. The Mexicans had plans for turning them into a penal establishment, a sort of Pa-cific coast Botany bay, but this likewise was never realized, and the resources of the group are so small that it is hardly visited once in ten years. The geographical position of the principal island, Saint Thomas, is: Latitude, 18 degrees and 43 minutes north; longitude, 110

The manuscript from which I have taken most of these facts, subsequently verified as far as possible by the leading historical authorities, is lent me by General Manuel Castro, one of whose relatives visited the islands and furnished the following description of Saint Thomas:

and furnished the following description of Saint Thomas:

"It is eight leagues long from southeast to northwest, and its widest part is about three leagues across. It is a mountain some 2,000 feet high, rising steeply from the ocean, with the main slope toward the south, and is visible in clear weather for twenty leagues away. The southern slope is covered with cactus and with low and exceedingly thorny shrubs, which grow in the devices of the rocks and dark lava that form its soil, which is evidently of volcanic origin. The anchoring grounds are two—one on the southwest, called Cornwallis bay, and the other on the southeast, called Braithwaite bay. Both of these were named by Captain Colnet. The only animals on the island are goats, which may be seen running over the heights. It is said that there is abundance of logwood, but this is doubtful, for this tree is usually found in the tropic lowlands. No permanent fresh springs have yet been found on the island, but there are probably some among the peaks, since west acrest exist there are device there are devector.

goats exist there, and since there are dense mists that often cover the mountains, as in the island of Guadelupe, off the California coast."

So much for the story of the treasure island. That of the treasure itself is still more a complex narrative, as must needs be in a matter which so many persons have been interested in keeping secret and which so few have really known anything about.

When the viceroy heard that the group of islands had been named in his honor he sent his secretary to examine them. This gentleman was a Castillian of pure blood, a nephew of the old duke of Albuquerque, and very loyal to the viceroy, whom indeed he held in his secret thoughts as fit to be king of New Spain, without the leave of the sleepy monarch of the Escurial. But this was hardly a plot; it was only a possibility, for which his love for the great viceroy prompted him to make ready if an opportunity presented itself.

The secretary went on board a government vessel at Acapulco, and the captain, who was under his orders, took him to the Revillagingedos. The beauty and safety of the southeast harbor first attracted his attention. Next, inaugurating a thorough exploration of the group, he discovered in the lave a series of caves or fissures, descending almost to the sea level, but so situated that the openings could easily be concealed. The secretary determined to use them as a storehouse of treasure, whose secret he would reveal to the viceroy in time of need.

Nor was this problem one that was difficult in the last decade of the last century.

whose secret he would reveal to the viceroy in time of need.

Nor was this problem one that was difficult in the last decade of the last century, if the sountry was Mexico, and the viceroy was a man of such was plans and such absolute confidence in his secretary. It was possible to gather up millions of dellars from the sea and the land without being called to account for it until the time came for the revelation. The surplus of Mexican revenue was still oriental in its magnificence. The secretary sailed back to Acapulco and sent a courier over the mountains on the dangerous path to the Yaqui Indians, who were absolute masters of an extensive territory, but had been hard pressed by the Spanish troops and were ready to make seace. He knew more about the Yaqui chief than even the viceroy had ever known, and the shief, who was a sort of a savage Napoleon, ame to Acapulco to see him.

A thousand legenda tell the story of the hidden golden treasure of the Yaqui Indians. It is among their fastnesses that the scenes of the vidlest adventures of prospectors and exclorers have occurred. Braver than any other indians of Mexico and more intelligent, the faqui tribes would die rather than let a Spanard have the secret of their mines. But the rest chief of all the tribes had traveled over lexing, and his heart held vague dreams of a dexico that should drive out the Spanish government. He had never dreamed that any of the Spaniards themselves could wish to help in this revolution.

rotation. retary won his confidence and made rith the Yaqui nations. If this treaty ratified by the viceroy, one clause, a to be kept secret between the chief secretary, was to begin operation at in the see of Cortes, and the viceroy and a royal corvette on a cruise along the shore of Baja Californis. The hother of the secretary, by dint of much persuasion and a convenient memory of an uncle who owned pearl fisheries, was a passenger. The royal corvette sailed up the gulf, ank several piratical vessels, discovered few pearl-oyster beds, and finally cast anchor off the old Franciscan mission of Loreto, where the secretary obtained from his cousins the men and the fishing schooner that he needed for his enterprise. Sailing across the gulf, to a bay named by the Yaqui chief, he sent a imessenger inland. Within a fortnight the chief came and fulfilled his promise. He showed the secretary a laguna, whose bottom when drained was sown thick with nuggets of gold. The treasure was sacked and carried to the vessel by many journeys, until the little fisher craft held one of the greatest piles of wealth ever known in the new world. Then the secretary and two men whom he could trust, sailed the craft to the Revillagigedo group, and buried it in one of the lava caverns on the island of Saint Thomas.

This was the first of the treasure-gathering of the shrewd, unselfish conspirator, who dreamed of the freedom of Mexico a third of a century before the revolution. But it was not the last, for his position enabled him to halve the pearl revenues of the gulf, and the silver revenues of the mines of Sonora and Chihuahua. So corrupt were many branches of the government at that time, so open to bribery, so used to false reports and the disappearance of large sums of money, that the secretary, at the expense of acquiring rather a worse reputation than the average politician of his time, was enabled to add millions of dollars every year to the viceroy's unknown treasury. He sent pearls, sapphires and opals, bars of silver, and gold, jewel-hilted swords and pistols, and tation than the average politician of its time, was enabled to add millions of dollars every year to the viceroy's unknown treasury. He sent pearls, sapphires and opals, bare of silver and gold, jewel-hilted swords and pistols, and many precious heirlooms of ancient Spanish families. Four or five men kept the secret of the island treasure, but all the provinces of Mexico were at last honeycombed with the plots of a broadening revolution, guided by a master hand. The secretary of the viceroy had changed in a few years from a dreamer to a man of action and a master of events. At last he knew that a great destiny lay before the land of New Spain. Once separated from the mother country, it should extend from the isthmus of Darien to the Russian fur settlement of Sitka. If the viceroy would lead in the revolution he should rule till the day of his death, but if the viceroy could not rise to the situation, he must be set aside. There were other men in the world, even he himself, the pridst of all this, the secretary was he secretary!

In the midst of all this, the secretary was the midst of all this, the secretary was stricken with so sore a paralysis that he could neither speak nor move. The vicercy, already on the eve of his fatal recall, hastened to his side. So strange and powerful was the look in the eyes of the man, that his master sat for hours trying to discover the secret that they tried to tell.

"You have something to tell me?"
"Yes! Yes!" said the agonized look,
"Is it the revenues?" the viceroy asked at last.

"Yes! Yes!" said the look of the secretary. "My poor friend, all that you have taken from Mexico, Mexico gives to you, and asks from Mexico, Mexico gives to you, and asks no further question."

Still the eyes glowed with stronger desire of expression, and the master saw that there was more to tell, but he could not reach the full solution of the problem. He only discovered that there was a treasure—a hidden treasure of enormous value, and that it had been accumulated for an especial purpose. There the clue failed, and Revillagigedo a few days later followed the body of the secretary to his grave.

The executors found nothing for many years. At last, among the secretary's papers a bit of parchment turned up, headed, in his precise penmanship:

penmanship: THE REVILLAGIGED FUND."
Then followed item for item, as follows:
Estimated value of Yaqui gold, $78,000,000.
Value of pears and precious stones, $13,000,000.
Value of silver, in bars, $25,000,000.
Value of other articles contributed to the fund,

S2,000,000.

Total, $119,000,000.

The Revillagigedo family were in old Spain, living in poverty on the memory of former greatness. The vicercy was a feeble old man, who had lost all his ambitions. The secretary's descendants and his executors became almost frenzied with the lust of gold, and they it is who accumulated the gradual narrative which, in a dozen different handwritings, has now become the "family romance" of one of the most noted of Spanish Californians. But by the time that the story was gathered from so many sources and by so many mosaic hints, the brother of the secretary and the two orthree men who had helped to hide the "Revillagigedo fund" were dead, this one by shipwreck, that one in a low brawl in a Mexican "fonds," another the victim of an Apache raid. All were gone long before the searchers for the treasure knew that it lay in the rocky islands offthe coast of Lower California.

The revolution broke up the families that knew the story, rendered them penniless, and made the immediate bread and butter demands of life so pressing that they had no time to think of the forexten politicism's revise of

of life so pressing that they had no time to think of the forgotten politician's purse of Fortunatus in the lava beds of the isle of Saint Thomas. A few of them sneaked over to the as fishermen or coast traders, but they found no treasure. Not thus lightly did the thief-hero, the patient secrety, hide his viceregal funds for the equipment of fleets and the arming of soldiers. Only a man that is as great as he, in the elements of foresight and endurance, shall ever cleave his way to the Revillagized extrehouse.

ance, shall ever cleave his way to the Revillagigedo storehouse.

The California representative of this old Spanish family once planned to fit out an expedition to the island, but the American conquest of the province brought him to poverty, and he was never able to carry out his scheme.

He prefers to sit in a wineshop and talk with his old companions of the days before the "Gringos" came. His old ambitions are dead, and he has no descendants. He keeps the manuscript that relates to the Revillagigedo treasure, as he keeps every written scrap of paper and as has not escendants. He scept the manuscript that relates to the Revillagigedo treasure, as he keeps every written scrap of paper that has ever come into his possession; none of them ever go out of his hands. But if a man has won his favor he will sometimes read him some of these old documents, and in this way the story of the viceroy and his secretary came to my knowledge.

NOTE.—Even while this account is being prepared for the press, tidings come of the death of the man to whom this last paragraph refers. General Manuel Castro, to whom the writer is indebted for the greater part of the information contained in the preceding article, died a few days ago, in an old Spanish mansion, near Castroville, Monterey county. With him disappears one of the most stately relics of a vanishing civilization. C. H. S.

WHAT SAM JONES SAYS ABOUT THE THIRD PARTY AND GEN-BEAL POLITICS.

He Thinks the Alliance Will Go Into a Third Party, if the Leaders Say So-"Burn-ing Democrats."

Rev. Sam Jones was in THE CONSTITUTION office the other day, and after handing in s communication on evangelists and meetings for men only, he remained a few minutes chatting with the editorial force.

As usual, he said a good many bright things, and here are some of them.

When asked whether the allfancemen of Texas were likely to go into the third party, he

"I have been watching that thing a good deal, and my opinion is that the alliancemen are not paying much attention to anything but what the leaders tell them. Whatever the leaders advise, they will be apt to do. If the leaders in the southern states advise them to go into the third party, I believe they will go.

will go.

"The alliance has my sympathy, but it won't get there. I said in a public speech in Mississippi, that every time the old parties played the rascal the farmers played the fool, and the fool gets left every time.

"The democrats will win I reckon. If they get the whisky crowd they'll put up the money, and that makes the mare go. I wish to God the democratic and republican par-ties were both wiped from the face of the earth, but I'll never see it. The republicans may die out, but when the last day comes they will be burning democrats. The democratic party has the principles that are at the foundation of this government, and whatever good there is in other parties came from the democrats. Old Thomas Jefferson was a broad-minded man. But Jeffersonian democracy is one thing in one place and another thing in another place."

another place. About the subtreasury plan Mr. Jones remarked: "Pin its ears back and grease it, and it is the easiest thing in the world to swallow. Grease it with green grease, I mean. That makes things look right. I saw a fellow the other day talking about the whisky business, and he had a card the size of an envelope On it he had in big letters: 'W-R-O-N-G.' He held it up and said, 'You see that? You see "wrong" on it.' Then he put a five-dollar bill over it and held it up. 'Now,' he says, 'you can't see it. It's there, but you can't tell it.' That's the way it is with a heap of things -put money on it and it looks all right. Senator George is talking more good sense to the farmers than any man I know."

Here the conversation ended. Mr. Jones turned off with a "Good luck to you," and nade his way down stairs. Mr. Jones's communication on evangelists, nale and female, and meetings for "men only"

will appear in Sunday's Constitution. SKIPPED THEIR BOARD,

They immediately telegraphed there for money, and expect to be released today. From letters on their persons it was shown that they had families at Nashville, Tenn.

The strange part of the case is that while doing a legitimate business in Macon, they reg-

WANT MARBLE HAULED.

The Blue Ridge Marble Company and Re-ceiver Glover in a Suit. The Blue Ridge Marble Company filed a suit yesterday by which it hopes to make Receiver Glover, of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad, come to time in the matter of hauling some marble. It is claimed that the marble company made a contract with Mr. Glover, company made a contract with Mr. Glover, when he was superintendent of the road, by which he was to haul marble from the quarries to the works, and from there to Marietta, at 5½ cents per 100 pounds, a sort of re-billing privilege being allowed at the works where the marble is dressed. It is claimed that Mr. Glover as receiver refuses or fails to carry out his contract, and that 11,000,000 pounds of marble on which the freight has been paid cannot be shipped. The case will be heard June 15th.

A Dead Federal Soldier's Bible.

From The Turin, Ga., Reporter.

Mr. J. C. Elmore, of Turin, Ga., has in his possession a Bible that a confederate soldier took out of the pocket of a dead federal on the battlefield of the "seven day's" fight at Richmond, in 1862, and gave to Mr. Elmore. He thinks the soldier was of a Massachusetts regiment. On the blank leaf between the old and new Testaments, is the name of "Ann Eliza Pratte, aged seventeen. "In the book was a piece of writing paper cut in the form of a heart, with a bird perched on either side, their beaks meeting above the heart, and on the heart were these words: "To Willie from his mother." Also the above mentioned name. The Bible was printed by the American Bible Society in 1854; is bound in roan and is about three by five inch binding. Mr. Elmore would be glad to restore the book to the soldier's family, and we hope that the papers will therefore copy this notice.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

ANBGRO'S NECK BROKEN YESTER-

He Was Digging in a Cut and the Dirt Caved. Killed Instantaneously—The Forema of the Hands Censured.

A negro was crushed to death under a pile of dirt yesterday morning.

His neck was broken and his death was in

The accident occurred just before 9 o'clock out in the old park at the Exposition mills.

At this place there is a cut of the Georgia
Pacific railroad. For some days a number of hands have been at work excavating for a pee to a bridge which is to be built over the Western and Atlantic and Georgia Pacific tracks. One or two "clips" had been made of fifteen or twenty feet, and yesterday the hands were working to throw off another section of dirt. At the time of the accident John Williams with several other negroes, was in the cut dig-

On top, but some forty feet further up the cut were other hands driving a wedge to ging at the bottom of the side they were clip-

Suddenly the dirt caved and continued all he way to where the hands were working in the cut. The fall was expected soon, but not at the time it occurred. The negroes ran, and all espaped except Williams and another. The latter was caught about midway the body by the falling dirt, but squirmed out without injury.

Williams was completely covered up.

The other hands rushed to the place and began throwing off the dirt to get to the man underneath. They soon reached him, but found him dead.

He was found in a doubled-up position, and appeared never to have made a struggle. The cut is twenty feet deep here, and the "clip" was about three feet wide, making the force and amount of dirt striking the man considerable.

Coroner Davis happened to be in the neighborhood and at once organized a jury to sit over the body of the dead negro. The evidence introduced was in accordance with the above. Besides the neck the left arm was broken and many severe bruises made. It was also shown that the work was being done under contract by Hutton & Grant, for the Georgia Pacific road, and that a man named McLane was acting as foreman. Mo-Lane stated that he was not very familiar with

The jury returned a verdict censuring the foreman, giving his inexperience as the cause of the accident.

No one knew where the negro came from or where his people lived. The hands at the camp took the body in charge and buried it out near the camps.

OZBURN IN JAIL.

He Passes a Quiet Day—Only a Few Vini-tors.

Ozburn passed a quiet day yesterday.

Only two or three visitors were admitted to his cell, and they were relatives. Ozburn had but little appetite yesterday morning when he awoke, and a very light breakfast satisfied him. The morning was passed lying upon the cot and gazing almost constantly at the ceiling.

Early in the afternoon Mrs. Brittain called o see the condemned man, but was compelled to come away without seeing him. It appear that Ozburn had expressed a desire to be left alone as much as possible, and Deputy Sheriff Barnes had given instructions to admit no one but the relatives.

During the day Mrs. Ozburn called to see her husband, but he failed to recognize her again. He was constantly asking for quiet again. He was constantly asking for quiet and rest all day long.

Dr. Griffin, country physician, has written the following card for publication:

ATLANTA, June 12, 1891.—Editor Constitution: I feel that an injustice has been done me, unintentionally perhaps, through your columns in regard to Mr. Charles Ozburn. The impression is left on the minds of the people that I keep him narcotized on opiates, and some attribute his craze to that cause. On yesterday, the jailer, Mr. Jordan, states that he did not give Mr. Ozburn an opiate, as was stated in this morning's Constitution. He informs me that he gave him nothing but a toddy during the morning. I leave the medicines in his charge with directions when and how to give them, and leave doses of some form of opium with the instruction to give them when actually necessary, also give directions concerning his meals, milk punches and toddies, and I believe my orders are very well executed. Respectfully,

E. GRIFFIN,

County Physician.

KILLED BY A HAND CAR. Team Run Into on the R. and D. and a Mule Killed. A hand car killed a mule and severely injured track hand on the Richmond and Danville road early yesterday morning.

It occurred near the electric railway power Mr. John Todd, who lives near the DeKalb line, started to the city with a two-mule team. Just before reaching the railroad crossing near the Fulton county electric line power house he saw a freight train on the Richmond and

Danville approaching and stopped to let it

Danville approaching and stopped to let it go by.

When the freight train pulled out of the Richmond and Danville yards a squad of track hands on a hand car caught on to the rear. The freight train pulled them until just before it reached the crossing, when the men on the hand car broke loose. The freight soon pulled away from the hand car, but the hand car was still moving rapidly.

As the freight passed the crossing Mr. Todd started his team. He did not see the rolling hand car, and the men on the car were powerless to control. Just as the team stepped upon the track the car struck one of the mules, killing it almost instantly. The hand car was thrown off the track, and the men on it were scattered about generally, one of them, George Hamp, being quite seriously hurt.

Mr. Todd will ask the road to pay for the mule.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The stock market was the NEW YORK, June 12.—The stock market was the same dull and listless affair that it has been for the sat month and an effort of a few traders to galvanise a meribund speculation into life by execution of matched orders failed completely of its object. The opening of the market was made at insignificant changes from last night's figures, but the firmness of yesterday soon became again apparent and a few large fractional gains were scored on active stocks, while the general list was almost entirely neglected and showed no tendency in either direction of industrials. Sugar was let off 1½ per cent and Chicago Gas 1 per cent for no apparent reason while the reported establishment of a new distillery in Chicago again served to depress the whisky trust, and it lost 1½. Early gains among the leading railroad shares, which included St. Paul, Atchison, Rock Island, Burlington, Louisville and Union Pacific amounted to large fractions which in cases of Rock Island and Union Pacific, were increased afterwardjto I per cent. Gould stocks came to in cases of Rock Island and Union Pacific, were increased afterwardto 1 per cent. Gould stocks came to the front in the last hour and all made material gains while Denver and Rio Grande preferred dropped away 1½ per cent at the same time. The close was dull, but strong at the best prices of the day. Sales listed stocks aggregated 107,000 share; unlisted 11,000.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, June 12.—[Special.]—The decline in our market today, in the face of an advance in Liverpool and better accounts from Manchester, is due to the continued selling for long account. These selling orders appear to be induced by the receipts at the interior towns and the weakness in the southern markets. A continued liquidation of the long interest in the market is in progress, attended by some short selling of the new crop positions on the belief that the recent ralpy weather had improved the condition of the crop since the issuance of the bureau report. From Manchester our savices report a decidedly better tone with more inquiry from India than for some time past, while buying orders from Liverpool have taken many of the short sales made here today for the distant positions. Our market closes at a slight rally from the lowest point, but the continent still remains very bearish in view of the heavy receiple.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The markets all looked very sick and ripe for another big slump at the opening this morning, thereby something was added to losses over night, and then there was a change of feeling and a rally along the line, the result being a reaction, which brought grain up to about the closing prices of yesterday, and carried provisions to a material advance. There was a large and excited trade in wheat near the opening, but later business became more quiet. There was not much in the way of news. July opened at 96%c@85%c, and broke to 95%c, but railled to and hung around in the neighborhood of 95%c, advanced to 95%c, broke to 95%c, railled to 96%c, and closed at 96c.

Corn was active and very weak, and at one time seemed on the verge of a panic. Everybody was struggling to sell, and seemingly regardless of prices.

Oats were about the weakest thing on the list. The trade seemed utterly demoralized, and July was disposed of around the opening at anywhere between 39%c and 40%c. After the opening flurry the market became rather quiet and steady, around 42%c@42%c, until the bulge in corn and wheat, when an advance to 41c took place.

Provisions proved very weak. Pork took the lead to 4le took place.

CIRCULAR NO. 190-

(CORRECTED.) Savannah, Griffin and North Alabama Rail-

The Central Railroad and Banking Company, having purchased the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad, and proposing to work said road, in connection with the Savannah, Griffin and North Alabama railroad, as one line from Griffin, Ga., to Chattanooga, Tenn., as the "Chattanooga Division of the Savannah and Western Railroad Company," and on continuous mileage with their system, it is hereby ordered that said division be allowed to add 20 per cent to the Commissioners' Standard Tariff on all classes except classes C, D, F, J, P, and Rosin.

It is further ordered that, on business passing from and to the main lines of the Central railroad, to and from said Chattanooga division, 10 per cent will be allowed to be added to the Commissioners' Standard Tariff on all classes except C, D, F, J, P, and Rosin, and the rates upon all such shipments shall be based upon continuous mileage.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia system is pledged to use every effort to force Indian Springs to be recognized as the Saratoga of the south, and as the waters of Indian Springs have positive merit, and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia generally does what it promises to do, it is safe to assume that Indian Springs will soon befreeognized as the leading southern fashionable resort.

To those going to New York this summer we would call special attention to the advantages of the Hotel Gladstone as a place to stop. It occupies the entire block corner Broadway and Central park and every room faces the park or a street, thus making it the coolest house in the city. Four lines of borse cars pass the door and the elevated station is only one block distant. The table and appointments are excellent, and we make especially low rates to parties by the week during the summer.

Georgis Pacific railroad, the east-bound train, No. 51, which passes here at 11:17 o'clock a. m., does not stop, and so the people of Douglasville and the traveling public have only one chance to leave here each day, and that on the morning accommodation at 7:28 o'clock, and only two chances to go west, and they nearly together, one at 3:41 o'clock and one at 5:60 o'clock p. m.

Realizing the disadvantages of this schedule to our town, the citizens signed a petition circulated by Mr., Fermor Barrett, asking the superintendent of the Georgia Pacific railroad, Hon. W. B. Rider, to extend the Sait Springs accommodation to Douglasville each day, which would arrive here from Atlanta at about 10 o'clock a. m., and leave on its return at 3:41 o'clock p. m. We are truly glad to learn that it is very probable that Mr. Rider will grant the petition of the citizens of Douglasville. By Henry M. Stanley. Oakland Heights Sanatorium. . ASHEVILLE, N. C.

For the purpose of inaugurating the new schedule to Indian Springs and return, effective Sunday, June 14th, the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railway will sell tickets from Atlanta to Indian Springs and return at 11 for the round trip, good for that day and date only. OPEN THE ENTIRE YEAR.

51 for the round trip, good for that day and date only.

These low rates will certainly originate a large crowd, and extra arrangements will be made for the comfort of the excursionists. The train will leave on and after Sunday, June 14th, at 7 o'clock a. m., instead of 5:30 o'clock a m., as now.

The rate committee of the Southern Passenger Association will meet in New York on the 16th. An important question that will come before the meeting is the withdrawal of unlimited rates, which has been pending for some time, and also the equalization of rates to New England and southwestern points. Rates to the national educational convention at Toronto, Canada, the Grand Army of the Republic encampment at Detroit and the southern interstate exposition at Raleigh, N. C., will be arranged. THIS HOUSE IS THE MOST DESIRABLE IN

THIS HOUSE IS THE MOST DESIRABLE IN the south for persons who need rest and medical attention. No hotel in Asheville has as well furnished rooms and its cuisine is unequaled. Only in the case of patients is the diet regulated. The table is an important, feature of the sanatorium. Elevators, open fire place, electric lights and bells, music hall, billiard parlor, tennis court, etc.

The water is pure and plentiful, coming from a large, limpid spring near by. The sanitary arrangements are as perfect as care and money can make them. Persons suffering with throat and lung troubles are greatly benefited by a stay at this place. The medical management is under the direction of Dr. P. W. Neefus, recently of the Jackson sanitorium, at Dansville, N. Y.

The sanatorium is thoroughly equipped with modern appliances for the scientific relief and cure of all nervous and chronic diseases. The bath departments are new throughout and are under the supervision of competent and skilled attendants. The methods of treatment include all forms of baths, the medicated vapors, Turkish, electric, Russian Roman moliere, thermo-electric, electrochemical, massage, electricity in all its forms, also Swedish movements. Medical attendance and every form of treatment included in price of room. Beautiful drives, fine livery, magnificent mountain scenery.

LECTURER COPELAND

TALKS ABOUT THE REFERENCES TO HIM IN THE ALLIANCE MONTHLY.

He Declares that They Are All False-Reference to the Caucus of 1888—The State Lecturer's Work.

Mr. W. S. Copeland, state lecturer of the Farmers' Alliance, arrived in the city yester-

When asked what he had to say in regard to the sensational charges which the editors of the Georgia Alliance Monthly had made against him and the other officers of the alliance he replied that the method persued by The Alliance Monthly could not be too severely condemned; that its editors had been trying to create dissensions in the order and to destroy its effectiveness; that the fact is, that all over the state where he had been the mansion house caucus and the men who were instrumental in calling it had met with the con-demnation of the people greater than he had ever before seen.

"Now," said Mr. Copeland, laughing, "they try to make it appear that this condemnation by the people was inspired by me. To shield themselves they resort to falsehood. I have never written a single resolution, or carried a resolution written by any one else, and the people of this state who condemn these men know better than anybody else that I have not influenced their action

"The silliest part of their attack was their effort to hide themselves behind a meeting that took place at the old capitol as far back as 1888. The fact is that the meeting at the capitol in 1888 was in no sense a dark-lantern caucus held by a faction of the alliance to try and break down its chosen leaders. At that time we were having regular meetings of the alliance members of the legislature, which was then in session. At one of these meetings Mr. Burks, who was then state secretary, and Mr. Turner, state organizer, made certain charges against Mr. Jackson, the former president, stating that his course was embarrassing the organization of suballiances throughout the

"These same gentlemen consulted the chairman of the executive cemmittee, which is, under the law, the state alliance when that body is not in session. These men did not at that time undertake to get up a factional contest to injure the alliance or its regularly constituted officers, but they claimed to desire to proceed in a regular and orderly way to ac-

"The meeting of 1888 was not called by special invitations with letters sent out before enjoining secrecy. There was no dark-lantern The trouble with Mr. Jackson was simply called up at a regular meeting of the members of the alliance then in Atlanta attending the legislature.

"The alliance in this state" said Mr. Copeland, "has grown too great and powerful to be broken to pieces by the efforts of such men as Burks and Burgeer even if their attacks are inspired by men of greater brain and higher position. The people know too well who are the 'cats in this meal tub.'

"The charge that I have been kept in the field for the purpose of scattering false state-ments, or to bolster up my own or Colonel Livingston's influence, is an infamous lie, willfully and intentionally told, not merely to injure me but to break the influence of the order to which my works have shown me to be earnestly and devotedly attached."

Don't waste your money. Economy and strength are peculiar features of Hood's Sarsa parilla, which is the only medicine of which can truly be said, 100 doses one dollar. Sold by all druggists.

It Is a Genuine Treat.

We mean Hoyt's Jersey butter, beyond all doubt the best butter ever brought to Atlanta; uniform-ity in grade, richness of flavor, absolute purity, are its qualities. It is all bought from one dairy, situated in the blue-grass country, and hence always uniform, always of that fine rich color and flavor which blue grass alone imparts to fine Jersey butter. As soon as we receive it we put it in a refrigerator and it is delivered to your house in an ice box. Now, isn't it a treat to have no more poor butter, no more stale butter, no more melted butter, but instead, always the same high grade Jersey? We are furnishing that quality of butter Jersey? We are furnishing that quality of butter every day, and can supply you. Ask any of our many pleased customers about our butter and then, take their advice and come and do likewise, and the butter problem will trouble you no longer. Another treat is our Rijamo coffee. We call it a treat because we mean it, for nothing is more exhilarating and enjoyable than a cup of fine coffee, and our Rijamo is the highest grade coffee that can be found. It is a combination of Mandeling Java, Mocha and Maracaibo, and the blend gives a coffee of fine aroma and of elegant flavor it is always sold at 35 cents, cheaper than you can buy a lower grade elsewhere.

We also propose to offer to our customers some big bargains. How is salmon at 15 cents per can? That is the price it will go at for the next week; also, fine brook trout at 15 cents, fine imported herring at 15 cents, canned mackerel at 15 cents, Thurber's Windham corn at 15 cents a can each. Isn't that cheap enough?

Our low price on blackberry jam will hold good until all is sold. Full quart jars of home-made, pure and best quality of blackberry jam at 65 cents We expect you are about out of all your own, so come and get some, which is just as good and about as cheap as you can make it.

Our fresh stock of imported biscuits and crackers came yesterday. We have them both by the pound and in one-pound boxes. Come around and test them. At the same time we received a fresh stock of dates, prunes, figs, currants and evaporated apples, apricots and peaches. At this season nothing has ever been brough to Atlanta as fine as our new prunes. The apples, apricots and peaches are also as fine in quality as can be cured. W. R. Hovr, rmmay21-tf-n 5 or 7p every day, and can supply you. Ask any of our Governor Northen Will Conduct Services at a Convict Camp Tomorrow.

The work of Flower Mission Day is not yet finished. The convicts of the camps can be reached only on Sunday. Next Sunday afternoon there will be a religious service at the Chattahoochee camps, led by Governor W. J. Northen. At this service flowers will be distributed bearing scriptural texts, and the ladies, grateful for the many kind responses already made, ask now another contribution of flowers to be sent to 75½ Whitehall street, the rooms of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

the rooms of the Woman's Christian Temper-ance Union.

"Tis like Georgia's governor," said a lady yesterday, "to thus turn aside from his Sab-bath rest and point Georgia's convicts to the better way; but each of these criminals was once some mother's innocent child, and it is hoped that the mothers of Atlanta will re-spond to this call for flowers."
